Subject: Edtr System and Followups

Dear Mam,

I am writing to explain the current state of our eDTR System, which is currently running live on our servers at the Dacudao office. Unfortunately, we have experienced several electricity interruptions between March and April, causing incomplete data automation and affecting the reliability of the system. To address this issue, I suggest that we consider availing a new domain outside our system. This domain can act as a bridge between branches and our main server, running 24/7 in the cloud servers with no worries about internet and electricity interruptions. The domain is highly secure with encryption provided by the server, and we can use it for multiple applications, not just eDTR.

This solution offers several benefits, such as avoiding connectivity issues with branches and syncing data between our own servers. The cost for the domain is approximately 8,000 for three years, with the option to renew if we decide to continue using it.

I would like to draw your attention to the fact that our server is safeguarded by an Uninterruptible Power Supply (UPS) which has a limited capacity to support devices for one hour. Any extended power outage may result in the server shutting down, leading to possible data corruption and reduced lifespan of the server and its peripherals. Although we backup the data regularly, frequent power interruptions may pose long-term challenges. Therefore, I recommend that we acquire two additional batteries to extend the UPS lifespan to at least three hours. This will provide sufficient time to safely shut down the devices before the UPS battery is depleted. Typically, power outages last between 30 minutes to 1 and a half hours unless there are issues with the Davao Light Posts.

Lastly, I would like to follow up on my request for CCTV installation in Leyte and the remaining branches in Digos Area. I have been in constant communication with Mam Mitch, but she informed me that she has yet to receive a response from Sir Doc. I also sent a text message to Sir Dan on March 23, but I have not received a reply. I am not sure if Mam Mitch has reached out to Sir Dan or if she is waiting for him to hand over the request to her.

Thank you for your attention to these matters.
